With such centralization of these tasks, you can easily reduce manual maintenance of your application.

So, with this, you learned to define scheduled tasks in the Kernel.php file, create a custom Artisan command for clearing logs, and configure a Linux cron job to trigger the Scheduler every minute. This setup ensures that routine maintenance operations, such as clearing logs or generating reports, run automatically without manual intervention.