The above command creates a new file named ProductController.php in the app/Http/Controllers directory, which automatically comes with methods corresponding to the typical CRUD operations.

Understanding Resource Controller Methods

Within the newly created you will observe methods such as:

- Lists all the products.
- Displays the form to create a new product.
- Processes the form data to add a new product.
- Displays a single product by its unique identifier.
- Displays the form to edit an existing product.
- Processes the updated information for an existing product.
