Some years ago, I donated my medals, trophies and other sports memorabilia to the NIS, Patiala, and Delhi's National Stadium, while the spiked shoes I wore to run the 1960 Rome Olympics was donated by me for a charity auction organized by actor Rahul Bose's NGO, The Foundation. Rakeysh Omprakash Mehra, who made the film on my early life and running days—Bhaag Milkha Bhaag —bought the shoes for twenty-four lakhs rupees .

Life has given me much more than I hoped for, however, I have one remaining desire: to see an Indian runner win back the Olympic medal that slipped away from my hand on that fateful day in Rome.
