characters with whom I played. If they wanted to party on an evening during a game, then they would. And because I am a spontaneous sort of person, I was happy to go along with them. This set the tone for the rest of my career – something for which I am eternally grateful.