old-timers in DRDO, I started inviting people from the Indian Institute of Science, Indian Institutes of Technology, Council for Scientific and Industrial Research, Tata Institute of Fundamental Research, and many other educational institutions where related experts could be found. I felt that the stuffy work centres of DRDL needed a breath of fresh air. Once we opened the windows wide, the light of scientific talent began to pour in. Once more, Coleridge's Ancient Mariner came to mind: "Swiftly, swiftly flew the ship,\ Riding gently the oncoming tide."

Sometime in the beginning of 1983, Prof. Dhawan visited DRDL. I reminded him of his own advice to me almost a decade ago: "You have to dream before your
