agencies would participate in the creation of Research Centre Imarat (RCI), someone had to protect hierarchical sensitivities. I selected Krishna Mohan, who was in his midthirties, to complement Suryakantha Rao, who was in his late fifties at that time. Krishna Mohan would encourage involvement rather than relying on obedience and monitoring people at their workplaces.

According to the established procedure, we approached the Military Engineering Services (MES) for the RCI construction work. They said it would take five years to complete the task. The matter was discussed in depth at the highest level in the Ministry of Defence and a landmark decision to entrust the responsibility of building defence structures to an outside construction company was taken. We liaised with the Survey of India and the National Remote Sensing Agency for the inspection of the contour maps and for obtaining aerial photographs of the Imarat
